

Mary Todd Lincoln was born on December 13, 1818 in Lexington, Kentucky. Lexington was the largest city in early Kentucky. The Todds were an important family in an important town. Mary had more formal education than most girls—and many boys—of her time. Her education helped prepare her for her role as first lady of the United States.

MARY TODD LINCOLN

« HOUSE »